With an unconcern that was amusing at times, J. Pierpont Morgan, in his examination of the house money trust committee today, admitted that he dominated everything that he was connected with as a financier. Morgan testified that the deposits in his private bank amounted to $110,000,000. That his company is the sole fiscal agency for the New York Central and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railway, that he frequently acts for the Steel Trust and other corporations, including the American Telegraph & Telephone Company, and that he alone reorganized the Northern Pacific. He was unable to give a list of all the corporations for which his firm acts fiscally. Morgan also blandly admitted that what he says in Steel Trust affairs goes. He testified that the total deposits in his banks November 1 were about $110,000,000, and that he was director in some of the firms depositing with Morgan & Company. His concern, he said, had fiscal agent contracts only with the New York Central and the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railway and their allied lines. Morgan & Company, he said, has the exclusive right of marketing the securities of these two roads. Morgan read both the fiscal contracts his firm had with the New York Central and the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroads. These showed that Morgan & Company control one and a half per cent of the stock. Morgan denied it to be feasible for corporation securities to be sold in open competition with the Federal and municipal bonds, to get a high price. The financier admitted he approved the entire board of directors of the Steel Corporation when it was organized. He would not admit, however, that he actually named the board, adding: "I will say this, however, whoever went on the board went on with my approval." "Did you say who would stay on the board and who would stay off?" asked Attorney Undermyer, for the committee. "I probably did later," answered Morgan. "The board is not named by me now; but nobody will name agents against my protest." Morgan admitted he named Judge Gary, chairman of the Steel Corporation executive committee, and that he fixed the prices paid for the companies forming the corporation at the time of reorganization. "Who decided that Morgan & Company should be the agents for the Steel Corporation securities?" asked Undermyer. "I did," answered Morgan. Referring again to the Steel Trust Morgan said the organization of the corporation was accomplished without written contract. Just merely by correspondence. Morgan & Company, he said, dominated the entire organization once. Undermyer asked Morgan how much stock he personally owned in the National City Bank and the National Bank of Commerce. The financier said: "Oh, I don't know; a million or so." The crowd laughed, Morgan joining in after he realized how he had made his answer.

A monstrous demonstration was carried out successfully today in the midst of Japan's capital. A citizen mass meeting called for the purpose of protesting against "Kanyo-ha," or the ascendancy of the Bureaucratic party, as represented by Prince Yamagata and Katsura, was attended by 5000 citizens, who packed the Kabukiza theater to its limits. Among the opposing speakers were Count Itagaki, T. Sugita, once speaker of the lower house in the Imperial diet, Yukio Ozaki, former mayor of Tokyo, and Ki Inagaki, leader of the Nationalist party. Count Itagaki is widely known as a most enthusiastic supporter of constitutional government, and his address, scoring the Bureaucratic party, met with tremendous applause. The police chiefs were nervous as to the mass meeting, and scores of police officers were detailed to the scene of the gathering to suppress any disorder which might arise. But although enthusiasm ran high, there were no signs of riot and disorder and the audience dispersed in an orderly manner. Almost all the leading newspapers, except the organ of the "Kanyo-ha" in Tokyo and Osaka came out strong in heralding the mass meeting and the entire nation is aroused over the situation. Prince Katsura and his newly organized cabinet is the center of the storm. The reappointment of Baron Admiral Saito to the ministry of the navy is considered ground for offense by the opposition and the trouble is such that Premier Katsura and his ministers are as yet unable to perform the inauguration ceremony at the palace.

After a three-hour conference in New York with William F. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, President-elect Wilson announced, as he rode home last night, that he had taken up in earnest the task of picking a cabinet. No information was forthcoming from either McCombs or the President-elect as to the names of the men discussed for cabinet portfolios. When McCombs left the Governor he said both the cabinet and legislative policies had been talked over. He was asked if Mr. Bryan's name had been mentioned in the discussion. Mr. McCombs answered in the affirmative, but declined to commit himself further.

Assistant District Attorney Noel today closed his argument against the union men on trial here for illegally transporting dynamite, with the demand that they be given the full penalty of the law. Senator John Kern, chief counsel for the union men, will follow Crum. After the defense has finished its arguments, District Attorney Charles W. Miller will close the case.

The pardon becomes effective Christmas Day. Capt. Van Schaik has been out of prison on parole for some time.
